

F. B. I. 49

J. M. Millan, executed at 7 A.M. May 25, 1910.

He was tried & condemned April 17-18, for having administered poison to a young woman, which occasioned mortally the death of her child, but his own death. — He was a native of Scotland

9. He told me on his arrival here the first time.
He expressed his pleasure at seeing me etc., Paul having the night before visited him who I was. He told me he had been in Grangemill in the way of trade. But otherwise he did not say much. —

10. At his arrival. He was greatly di-taught at that part of the sentence by which his body was to be given to the surgeon. — Encouraged to pacify him, and read his attention to concerns of his soul. — His mind greatly relaxed by God's mercies mentioned, he understood from the Provost, his body would scarcely be asked for by Surgeons at Edinburgh. —

At these visits he appeared rather selfish-fear, regarding himself upon his supposed moral conduct in every other respect, excepting the crime for which he was condemned. —

11. He was greatly alarmed with the future judgment. He said, he was sinious to be a very great evil — He seemed distressed at his visitation of his mind. His sister was anxious, this visitation of his mind, she had been quite worried about his condition, as he had been quite very anxious, throughout his stay — He just now came to the very last that he did not feel sufficient fluency & eloquence in praying. — I endeavoured to put him to rights on that head. — Henry Cowan had just been with him, and I another suspect, that he was. — Gachy perplexed his mind with subjects of that kind. — May 11. Saw him again. He seems to increase in self-knowledge, and in desire to after our Savior. — The Revd. Minister came in. I thought his manner of speaking to the Poisons very suitable. Has God given to us the utmost simplicity in coming applying to our Savior, and to commend him just as he was, without thinking to make himself better. —

2. 3. Was scarcely an hour with him. He said he had no goodness or merit at all to please God. He had committed innumerable sins, for which God might justly condemn him, and a hundred of them more for which he suffered. — He was able to give up his mother & salvation to God, and not distress himself any more on their account. — He did not intend to leave any thing behind him in writing, or thoughts, it was not becoming, & criminal to speak with too much ex-posure of himself, and it might tend to make others presume on the merits of God, and lead them in sin. —

2. 10. Poisons feels more composed — this is sensible Religion has made a change upon him — afraid to be too confident

Seduction, till I fell in with this woman - I was too weak to resist - God knows what virtue I have a few since and still feel, but I believe he hath pardoned me. -

"If die in peace with all mankind - I leave nothing against Prosecutor - Jury or Judge. - A

"I shall always have reason to pray for person to the very last moment - for there is no perfection in this world. - "It is finished! - How delightful! It is the most precious sentence in the Bible to a sinner who can do nothing himself, and has given to believe in it. -

"When I have escaped, I shall remember in heaven, by former, it will add to my Joy - Runnow I say: The Lord is with you for sin - - they have recollection of sin - "What a misery I am so well attened - The Lord will reward you". I said: You are by nature a sinner like you're. -

He said: "How unmerciful are we of the slippery path - It is very slippery".
"How many happy hours do I now spend in intercourse with my Savior".

The Court is merciful, especially mine - I greatly fear it. -

- I have attempted to do good works, but they have been only an insult to God, they were done to buy God's favor - but now I wld. wish to do it out of love to my Savior. -

+ 18/ Was in Prison fr. 1-2^{1/2}. getting the Paul to let me in - at the end J. Gandy comes -

"I have just read Prov. III. - I think it very applicable to my case, especially: "Bewleid man that I am —

"Send a paper of Gaylord to him - He seems much struck with it. - He thought much of the hymn: Come ye sinners poor & wretched we which I repeat — — My time passes very quickly in meditation & prayer. —

"I wish my relatives, fellow-prisoners & all mankind wd. take warning by me — I earnestly pray for them. —

"What a blessed thing is it that we have the gospel! —

"I wish I may be supported at the last. —

"When McLean came to me the day after Condemnation, his observation had no impressions upon me. —

He was 2 days in Pacificail - came to Hilton beginning of December. —

This relatives much lost in their worldly concerns by his removal. —

"I was never a bad man & sinner, but I attempted religion in my own strength. —

"I knew much more of Bible before but my memory fails. —

"I heard the sentence with great confusion, it did not seize till I came into the passage. —

"I think I have a good hope, but I am jealous lest my heart shd. be received by Satan. —

2.19/ Mr. Lawson comes in, - Priores got a letter - Barber comes - He had heard much of me, thinking I was not well and he came down the street. - He said nothing more. - He wished he could make a firm engagement with the Lord. -

D. H. Went to the Prison at 2. - "To-night I feel greatly distressed with a sense of my sins, they stand all before me. But I am relieved by an most uncommon feeling of happiness, I feel my heart glow, full of joy, sense of pardon and love I cannot express it. - Surely I am not deceiving myself. - I am a great, very great sinner; but I think God's mercy is greater - I do not know the sufferings of Christ - that is sole Divine love." - Letter recd on th. was fr. his master, who gave evangelical edn. - Priores now speaks with more feeling.

E. H. Mr. H. Lawson & I were in. - Priores mentioned the sympathy of his friends. I say I have no comfort fr. it, but adds, what is the faith of the world now to me, if I have not faith in God. - He thinks of Christ sympathetically with emotion. - I have lived in pleasure, but it laid a stain. - In midst of a joyful companion, I wonder'd if it could not be happy. - Here in jail the Lord death wife death time has gone - surely I quickly, never did it pass so quickly - the fatal day is near - time flies & leaves an end, but God's mercy endures all forever. -

"Lord will wife away tears" — Many thousands years have I shed these — and still continue to weep till the last — it was my tears and mixed with joy — the more I feel of the love of God, the more bairious I become since professing, but his love prevents despair — "God's pardoning love fills me with joy, it shall be my theme while here, and through eternity I shall sing: to him let all bow.
— "But it is a precious promise, there shall be a fountain in us." —

"At first I could not attend to any thing, the ministers said to me, I could not remember their conversations, during the very prayers my mind was distract — but now I can wish to have them all day with me, I feel happy in their company, and happy in the recollection." — Bro. Do you not think your indifference arises in part, from want of knowledge of your sins, & your supposed innocence?
A. Yes. — But now I have nothing to rely on but offer grace. —

"I continue jealous over myself, but I trust my strength will be equal to my day." — L. 29. Hi. Lawson & I were in — "My best actions have been sinful — It was my deceitful heart who handed me over to conviction of these crimes."

"I had oft good desires, but they were lost." —

"I professed in Wigton I quit, but it was for life liberty — my heart cleaves to the earth — my treasure was there. Now I hope my treasure is in heaven — I bring with conviction & confess of my sins. —

"The Devil's sin was forgiv'n him, yet Divine judgments were not removed in this world; so, I think, it is with me. —

"My case formerly was like Sorenlites, who prayed for Divine direction, yet when it was contrary to their own inclinations, they could not follow it; — now I hope I wish to give my whole heart to Jesus. —

"I hope my imprisonment will be a blessing to my f'd. — I wish it may be a warning to all. — I may have reason to thank God for it on their account to all eternity. —

2.12h. Saw him at 2. — Revd. And had just come out, with whom I had some talk. Expressing his astonishment at Prisoner's composure he asked me, what I thought it arose from.
I told him, Prisoner had been convinced of confessed his offence, had cried for mercy, and confessed his professed himself ready to have a good hope of salvation. — He said he did not think, that the evidence was so strong as to condemn him, as the indictment charged him not with the Child's death, but only with that of the woman, and the intention of this appeared not proved; indeed Prisoner always denies having had the least intention of that kind. — Was not long with Prisoner, as a friend of his came in to speak of some family concerns, and I could not stay with him on that account for want of time. —

He said: Story of death was no good from Texts particularly comfortable: God so loved world — Command call with tears — I. C. come into world to save sinners —

Buily Kirkland had been in. He asked me, said Prisoner, if I had employed my time well?
— I was going to tell him, but he just went away, that tho' it was very duty to employ my time, I could never have done it to good purpose, if the Lord had not given me his grace; and that whatever I might have done, I had nothing to rely upon but the finished work of Christ.

In our meeting this evening I read Luke XV.
And then mentioned, that this chapter had been particularly comforting to the Prisoner, and that I had reason to think, he had himself felt something of that love of God, sometimes, which is there strikingly represented. — too close with us, as far as the railing, during which all seemed greatly affected. —

In the night Dr. G. watched with Prisoner.
J. Gandy told me, next morning, that in the early part of last Prisoner had been so affected with his approaching end as to tremble, but he grew gradually composed. —

9.25. Execution-Day. I went to the Prison soon after 9 - but hearing, that Stevenson & Lucian & several others were in, I did not go to him. And understanding Mr. And was to come at 10, and wanted to be alone with Prisoner, I returned home; but went back again before H. —

At the same time, except in his eightieth year.

He had never been so ill as he was in his eightieth year.

And had not yet arrived, but he came soon. Meanwhile I waited in the guard room. Shaw came; and when And came out, we went in together. — Marion was just then taking leave of Mr. Holt as who had come last night. The scene was affecting, and very trying to him; but he receded himself in a few moments. Shaw addressed a prayer with him. I then spoke a few words, and desired him to fix on a y. to be sure, ^{mentioning} y. 107. Gentry proceeded. I then prayed. — Shaw now went away, but nuclear came in. He spoke to him, and other y. was sure, and then left. — Nuclear then urged Marion to pray; he did it, but seemed put to. — Stevenson now came in. — Nuclear & I went out for a time, and then returned. — Stevenson was still speaking to him. I then prayed. — Marion visited the hymn b. in Miss. Coll. Tolson's: "The hour of my departure's come." I then prayed with him. — Stevenson now proposed to him to kneel down & offer a silent prayer. He did so for about 10 minutes, and uttered the Lord's last sentence as a loud: "Lord I give you my spirit — that I may join in the song of praise to the Lamb, that was slain forever ever." — He then said: "The Lord's goodness since death been very great — & that I could love him better. — It was intimated, that his visitors would previously communicate his aims. Stevenson encouraged him very affectionately, reminded him, but Savio had an experimental fellow feeling with us in this respect. — Just then Bailey Donalson came & told him his time was come, & told he replied: "I am ready, Sir, — Executioner bid him give a bath and wash gently. — He went out immediately followed by us 3 ministers. — In Butler's office we waited the law & maintenance of his, the Rev. of Constant read us short papers he had signed, expressing his thanks to ~~Attorneys~~, and to ~~the~~ his lawyers, and that he hoped for mercy thro' a saving blood of Jesus. —

He went forward with steady steps — we took leave of him — He spent 3 or 4 minutes in silent prayer, & spoke in a deliberate sign, but executioner was not immediately ready. — He did almost without struggle. —

He was wonderfully composed, & so it always appeared, his hope was solely built on the Atonement. — When he had given for his last prayer in the cell, he said: "The Lord be glorified. This was his last & best salutation. —

The crowd was great, but it could not be seen taken that the Prison was not crowded. — When he was suspended, Stevenson & I, & the Constable. — He came out at 3 o'clock — His corpor was this evening taken away by Glasgow Doctors in a gig, who had to be guarded thro' the town, & yet were pelted with stones. —

I got home at 4 o'clock. — left his shands say "peace peace, where there is no peace" - afraid his sentence is not sufficiently deep and that he cannot sorrow for sin as he ought - enjoys more liberty in his yds. -

5.12/but with Mr. Watson in the Prison, and had not much conversation with the Prisoner. - 6.14/that dist minister & I had not been long in, when the Prisoner's brother, Alexander, came in, and as they were going to a sort of farewell of in each other, we soon left him.

6.15/was nearly an hour alone with Prisoner, and he talked a good deal. - Rev. Arthur Stewart of Kirkcudbrightshire p. Wrights preacher the gospel, is a friend of man, had great regard for Prisoner, and was greatly affected with his fate. Prisoner has written to him. /I heard of Tuesday, that the Schoolmaster had written to Alexander, the Tyer, saying, Prisoner had bore a very good character in the parish; and wished him to visit the Prisoner. - Prisoner said, he was going to write to his principle prosecutor, who, he heard, was greatly troubled now, to assure him he d. in peace with all men, and hoped God would be merciful to his soul - Prisoner's father was a weaver, & he was brought up to that business, & had a little land. -

He can speak with his dying breath, that he did not intend to take the woman's life, was ignorant of the strength of the poison, that he got it according to her repeated requests, was in a great hurry when he brought it her, for his master was lying upon his deathbed

P.D. and have forwarded by a friend not to write - Afterwards

and would not have him to be absent of that he intended the woman to be evicted in the use of it, especially to keep fit, getting cold, to which she replied, that her master would have little or no more out-door-work to do for her. - They did not suppose the child to be quickened at the time, and therefore thought it was no sin to unnatural to produce abortion; they only wished to hide their shame. — I particularly interrogated him upon this part of the story and what he now thought expecting his conduct. Hasan, he now felt convinced, that his first connexion with the woman was an irreconcileable sin, that taking life in any state of existence under any circumstances, not abounding unavoidable, was a serious sin. He would be absolutely without hope if it were not, that God so loved the world as Praying in his former life Hasan: I was obliged, & generally respects, went diligently to church, but I sought more the pleasure of my than that of God. — I had no life in my soul he saw little need of grace, & therefore never seriously purposed for it. — To what an awful length of wickedness have I been driven, by no religion, temptation and being left to myself. But I hope the Lord will yet grant me repentance unto life. — With regard to my notions of religion they are not greatly altered, tho' my view of the gospel are clearer, and I feel something of their influence. I am come over a few and sometimes thought of them two others before, but they never impressed my mind as they do now. — The fear of Death was greatly taken from him, and he could become quite happy to die in an ordinary way, but his death was peculiarly bitter, and he felt especially for his friends. He was afraid he could no so forget them as he ought to do. I told him, it was not required, as he had low and special concern for friends, but to commit them to our Savior and leave them in the hands of a faithful friend, as most to put a man at ease against God. He referred to the words: "For behold thy mother is here." — This consoled him. — He said, "I wish my fit. may take a warning by me, and walk cautiously on the slippery paths of life; seeing my unhappy fate be the measure of a walk warning, and convicting any of them, I should much exceed to rejoice even at my misfortune. Indeed I wish sinners at large in my take warning by me. — I feel the depravity of my heart, but I should deceive myself in my present hope; I think I could ~~not~~ ^{not} be more afraid of sinners, if I was at large in the world, and could find more opportunities to show the sincerity of my repentance." — I have been reading Luke XV. It is an encouraging chapter. — And that is a sweet passage: "For we are prisoners of God — Spotted out to him Isaiah Ch. 1-3. with its references in Luke IV. 19. —

"The prospect of hell. I sleep little - used to read the Eng. - but now I spend it in sweet meditation. -

"He is about 35 years of age - was never married - river lines weaver. - Present to abit a haven, had to be out of the way for a few days, not apprehended in any danger. - He was taken while walking, carelessly about in the market. - 19 weeks confined in Wigton Jail - passed by all there was not fear - used to escape, etc. etc. easily be-apprehended - but was confident of acquittal. - His escape would have gratified my fit.
But now I think I have reason to be thankful I did not do it."

"At first when I came here, I did not apprehend - but I forced myself, as people said I was going to starve myself, - I wished not clamours to be raised - for my fame was the pride of men, or wonder at once to be forsaken, I could not leave down without distracting shame! -

"David watered his couch with his tears - Many he bathed X's feet - but my friend Paul does not feel that confection - & for deeper sorrow! -

"Peter said, Lord I than knowest not. - I dare not say so, but I may say: thou knowest I desire to love thee - but what beauty is there in our Savios?"

"When I was very young, I found a woman with child - it greatly disturbed me, and I long denied it - but others settled something upon the child - I afterwards avoided
